He did not come, so Harry Holt was sent after him. In the meantime Kanama pleaded guilty and was sentenced to spend four months over the reef.

IMMIGRATION FROM JAPAN DECREASES

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8. — Secretary of Commerce and Labor Strauss said today that since the executive order of the President had become thoroughly understood in Japan, immigration from that country had fallen off to a considerable extent, so that now it is only one-third what it was the year before.

Japanese immigration for the fiscal year 1927 was 39,000, including those Japanese who went to Honolulu, as well as those who came to the mainland of the United States.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, immigration from Japan was 18,000, of which number 5,500 came to the mainland.

The Bureau of Immigration has ascertained that 5,718 Japanese left the mainland of the United States for Japan and other countries, leaving the actual net increase for the year but 3,800 Japanese in round numbers.

Of that increase, says Secretary Strauss, but a small number, perhaps 10 or 15 per cent, are included in the laboring classes.

This year, for the first time, the Department of Commerce and Labor is able to state accurately the gain in population the country has received from immigration.

Secretary Strauss states that the net gain to the population of the country from this source has been 299,000.

He says: "The figures given out in years past regarding immigration and emigration were misleading, as estimates of gain in population from immigration did not take into account the loss by emigration, and the estimates of increased population from that source were from 30 per cent to 75 per cent too large."

The Secretary does not believe that the estimates of the total present population of the country are too great, but that too much credit has been given immigration as a factor in up-building the Republic.

Conference Tomorrow On Aids To Navigation In Harbor

A committee from Honolulu Harbor No. 51, Association of Masters, Mates, and Pilots, will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock with Major McKinstry and Captain Otwell, of the U. S. Engineering Corps, to discuss aids to navigation in Honolulu harbor.

The meeting is the result of action on the part of the Association. Captains J. R. Macaulay and A. L. Lane were appointed a committee of two to meet with Captain Otwell and to become acquainted with Major McKinstry, who has been here but a short time from the Coast. A letter asking for a conference was sent to Captain Otwell, and the meeting was set for tomorrow morning.

His avowed purpose is to discuss the matter of lights, buoys, and other aids to navigation in this port.

Major McKinstry, who is in charge of lighthouse work in this district, will before leaving here make an inspection of all the lighthouse work in the islands.

T. R. WALKER DEAD

During his long residence here Mr. Walker's activities were not confined to business alone; in charitable, religious, and social circles he always took a prominent position, and his musical training enabled him to play a leading part in many of the amateur entertainments of his time.

When Mr. Theo. H. Davies retired to reside in England, in 1886, Mr. Walker became British Vice Consul here, a position which he filled until he himself left the islands.

Mr. Walker took an active part in church affairs and for years taught in the Sunday school of St. Andrew's Cathedral, beside holding positions on the vestry and at one time having charge of the choir. He was largely instrumental in the formation of the parish of St. Clement's and in the erection of the church there, and at the time of his death one of the trustees. Though a staunch churchman, Mr. Walker was a broad-minded man and was one of the original members of the Y. M. C. A. here, which owed its inception largely to his efforts.

The minutes of the first meeting of the Y. M. C. A. are in his hand-writing in the year 1869, when he held the position of secretary. From then until 1890 he held different positions, including that of president.

WIRELESS CHATTER

SPANS 2000 MILES

Wireless chatter in regard to a very funny signature of some officer on board the cruiser Milwaukee, which is in Central America somewhere, was heard in full at the Kahuku station the other evening, as it was carried on between Point Loma and the Honolulu stations, on the California coast. The stations were actually heard talking to the cruiser which is down in the tropical wilds of the revolution countries, commenting on the funny name of the member of some orders, and then a stark bullet in, and asked somebody if he wasn't thinking of the beer at Trisco.

The chatter, which is chiefly remarkable because such gaudy traveled 2100 miles in less time than the mathematicians can express, except by a symbol approaching zero, ran thus:

Paralones—See if you can get HM (Milwaukee). We have not got four messages between us. You got one, I have not.

Point Loma—No, I have not got four. Go ahead and try while I fix things up.

Paralones—Guess he has gone to call his relief. He may not show up. Give him a call, will you? He thinks we OKed nine messages.

Point Loma (to Milwaukee)—Is it Father? Go ahead again with signature.

Paralones (to Point Loma)—Yes, got all but that funny signature.

Then comes in the spark, from someone, "Are you thinking of the beer in Trisco, old man?"

Point Loma then complained of the buttiness of other talkers, and the chatter ceased.

JAPANESE VESSEL

SAILS FOR SUVA

The Japanese training ship Taisei Maru, which arrived here from San Francisco by way of Central America some time ago, presumably on its way home from a visit to the Coast, this morning at 6 o'clock went outside, bound for Suva, Fiji.

She steamed first out toward Diamond Head, and maneuvered there for a few minutes before going on her way south, after stemming back down the channel in the direction of the harbor entrance.

Ident on three occasions.

Though it is seven years since he has been away from Hawaii, Mr. Walker leaves behind him here a large number of close friends who mourn the loss of one of the gentlest and most unselfish and kind-hearted men that they have ever known.

IN FOREIGN PORTS

VICTORIA—Arrived Sept. 23: S. S. Ben of Huthven, hence Sept. 14.

PRINCESS THERESA

WORKS FOR LINK

"I am going to work hard in politics this year, and I tell you the most of my work will be for Link McCandless for Delegate. I am not for Cupid this year. Link is a good man. He once gave Mr. Wilcox $400 so that representatives could be sent from here to Washington. He has been a good friend to the Hawaiian people. So has Governor Frear. I will work for both of them."—Princess Theresa Wilcox.

WAR IS DECLARED!

The Citizens' Health Committee has declared war against the rat in the following bulletins:

"It is incumbent upon 'all to wage a relentless 'war on the rat, the 'source and breeder of 'the plague.'"

Even if you do not think there are rats on your premises, you should use Stearns' Electric Rat and Roach Paste, for rats travel all over the city and are liable to camp with you if your premises are not protected by Stearns' Electric Paste.

This reliable exterminator is sure death to all rats and usually kills them off in a single night. It is the best weapon in the war against rats, and every citizen should use it and protect our city.

LURLINE WIRELESS

Castle & Cooke, Limited, the local agents of the Matson Navigation Company, received wireless advices from the S. S. Lurline this morning to the effect that she was then 755 miles away, and would arrive at Honolulu early Friday morning. As has been previously stated, Captain Wm. Matson, the president of the Matson Navigation Company, is a passenger on the Lurline.

Accepting a dare from a young woman, Fred. Biaggi, 18 years old, seized the netting of a balloon at San Jose, Calif., and was carried 6,000 feet into the air, when the professional aeronaut dropped with a parachute, but landed safely in near-by mountains.
